

Learning Disability
Implementation
Advisory Group

LDIAG Information Officer Sam Williams

All About the LDIAG and My Work

Who am I?

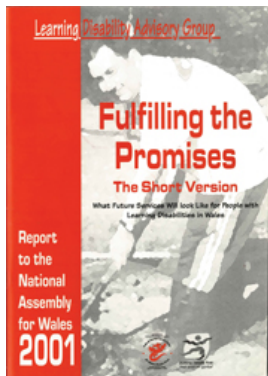

- My name is Sam Williams
- I am the LDIAG Information Officer
- I started work in January 2009
- I work 3 days a week
- My office is in Learning Disability Wales in Cardiff

Learning Disability Wales
Anabledd Dysgu Cymru

What is the LDIAG?

- LDIAG stands for Learning Disability Implementation Advisory Group
- The LDIAG was set up in 2002 by Jane Hutt who was the Minister for Health and Social Services in Wales at that time.
- The group was set up to look at what the Welsh Assembly Government was doing about the report 'Fulfilling the Promises'.

What is the LDIAG?

Llywodraeth Cynulliad Cymru
Welsh Assembly Government

x3

- Members of the group are chosen by the Minister.
- There are 3 representatives from All Wales People First.
- Other members represent parents and carers, social services, health, research and voluntary organisations (like Mencap Cymru, Learning Disability Wales and All Wales Forum of Parents and Carers).

What does the LDIAG do?

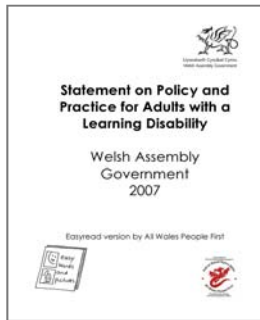

- The group talks about things that affect people with learning disabilities
- They tell the Welsh Assembly what they think
- They give the Welsh Assembly advice on what can be done to make life better for people with learning disabilities

What does the LDIAG do?

- The group has given the Minister lots of advice about things like transport, health, housing, jobs and prisons.
- The group has written lots of important documents too, like the Statement on Policy and Practice for Adults with a Learning Disability.
- The LDIAG helped make sure that people with learning disabilities in Wales got health checks.

How do I find out about the work of the LDIAG?

- It is my job to let people know what the LDIAG is doing
- I send out newsletters in easy read to tell you what is happening
- There is a new LDIAG website so that you can find out more information www.ldiag.org.uk
- I come along to these roadshows to let you know what is happening

Learning Disability
Implementation Advisory Group

How can I tell the LDIAG what is important to me?

- You can tell me and I will tell the group know about it. You can phone me, e-mail me or write to me.
- You can come to these roadshows and tell us what you think.
- You can tell one of the All Wales People First representatives and they will tell the group at the next meeting.

How can I contact you?

- My phone number is: 029 20681160
- My e-mail address is:
samantha.williams@learningdisabilitywales.org.uk
- My address is: Learning Disability Wales,
41 Lambourne Crescent, Cardiff Business
Park, Llanishen, Cardiff CF14 5GG

